* Bio: Jenna serves as a higher education policy and strategy lead at the Charles A. Dana Center at the University of Texas at Austin. She directs policy, evaluation, and scaling efforts for the Center’s two-year mathematics reform initiative—the New Mathways Project. She works with four-year institutions in Texas, Georgia, and Ohio to align early collegiate mathematics coursework to programs of study. Jenna’s recent research topics include developmental education, time-to-degree, scaling educational innovations, community college finance, international higher education, and STEM education. Before joining the Dana Center, Jenna was special assistant to the president at the Institute for Higher Education Policy, an associate at Deloitte and Touche and has served as a research assistant at Makerere University in Kampala, Uganda.

Jenna received her B.A. from The University of California–Berkeley and an M.A. in public affairs from the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs at The University of Texas at Austin. She is currently pursuing a Ph.D. in public policy from the LBJ School.
