STUDENT VOICES OF COMMUNITY COLLEGE

//

From my experience, and from all the students that I met, dual enrollment does prepare a student to graduate on time from high school and pursue postsecondary education. The data shows that it has many benefits that I think should be emphasized more.

- Dual Enrollment participant
- Associate of Arts and Science, Macomb Community College, 2025
- Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and Legal Studies, Wayne State University, Expected 2027

DUAL ENROLLMENT PROGRAM

As a first-generation American and college student, Abdullah wasn't sure if college was the right path for him. However, taking community college courses while in high school through the Early College of Macomb allowed him to explore his various interests, see himself as a scholar, and ultimately discover his passion for government. He credits his success to the emotional and academic support he received at the college, which included access to dedicated faculty, scholarly resources, student life involvement, and tailored advising. This support helped him graduate with both a high school diploma and an associate degree in a short timeframe.

FOCUSED ON THE FUTURE

"I'm very passionate about legal defense, government and community organizing. This came through years at Macomb; from the classes and the projects that I was involved in to the people that I met." Abdullah currently works in Macomb Community College's Student Life and Leadership department and will begin pursuing a bachelor's degree at Wayne State University in the fall. He aspires to become a civil rights attorney.
