

MICHIGAN NEW JOBS TRAINING PROGRAM

The Michigan New Jobs Training Program (MNJTP) is a local economic development initiative that has been serving employers since 2008. The program authorizes community colleges to temporarily capture the state income tax withholding associated with newly hired workers to pay for training.

281 employers served

32,247 projected new jobs under contract

LIVABLE WAGES

The minimum eligible pay is equal to the county ALICE rate* in which a job is primarily performed.

If your company is planning on expanding and adding new jobs in the state of Michigan, the program can provide the flexible funding to meet an assortment of employee training and development needs specifically designed for your business. There is no restriction on employer size or industry, and funds can be used for a broad range of training, from short-term contract training to certificates and degrees.

The county ALICE rate is equal to the minimum hourly rate necessary to pay the minimal estimate of the total household essentials for a household of 1 adult and 1 child in the county in which a job is primarily performed, based on the most recent household survival budget data provided by United for ALICE at unitedforalice.org.*